

Rich ELA Instruction Built for Active Classrooms

StudySync® places reading, writing, critical thinking, and classroom conversation at the center of ELA instruction. Students explore complex texts, exchange ideas, and develop their thinking through analysis and writing, while teachers shape instructional pathways and guide learning based on classroom needs.

Students

- Read and analyze rich, standards-aligned texts
- Participate in discussion and collaborative learning
- Develop ideas through annotation and close reading
- Build writing skills through drafting, feedback, and revision

Teachers

- Select texts, resources, and instructional pathways
- Guide analysis, discussion, and writing instruction
- Adjust pacing and activities to meet classroom needs
- Monitor progress and provide meaningful feedback

Digital Support

Digital resources are used purposefully to provide access, structure, and instructional visibility. They help teachers:

- Share texts and multimedia resources
- Assign and organize learning activities
- Monitor writing and formative assessment
- Support discussion, analysis, and feedback
- Adapt instruction for different learners

How Learning Happens

Reading + Discussion + Writing + Purposeful Media

StudySync brings together close reading, meaningful classroom conversation, collaborative learning, and sustained writing. Digital resources support these experiences where they add value, while teachers remain at the center of instruction.

Flexible Classroom Implementation

StudySync is designed to fit a variety of secondary ELA schedules and instructional models. Teachers determine which resources students use, how lessons are paced, and when digital activities are incorporated.

Supported implementations include:

- Whole-class instruction
- Small-group learning
- Collaborative discussion
- Independent reading and writing
- Print and digital activities
- Flexible 40-, 60-, and 90-minute lesson blocks

Digital interactions are typically used in short, purposeful 15–30-minute segments within broader lessons that also include discussion, close reading, writing, collaboration, and independent reading.

Why Districts Choose StudySync

Districts choose StudySync because it combines rigorous, standards-aligned ELA content with the flexibility teachers need to create active, discussion- and writing-centered classrooms.

- Standards-aligned core ELA instruction
- Rich texts and meaningful knowledge building
- Discussion- and writing-centered learning
- Teacher-controlled pathways and pacing
- Flexible print and digital implementation
- Visibility into student work and progress
